"The Award equips young people for life through the development of universal skills enabling them to become responsible, committed, dedicated citizens. It provides a framework for non-formal education and has set guiding principles, with proven outcomes for young people who complete the Award. It creates experiential learning opportunities to help young people discover talents that do not necessarily show up in the classroom context. The programme brings together practical experiences and life skills, building confidence, encouraging physical health and recreation, and motivating young people to engage with their communities. The Award is structured to develop soft skills, preparing young people for the world of employment and thriving during high school and tertiary education."
