

English boff heads for Grahamstown

MARIS Stella's Sarah Herrington (Grade 12) placed in the Top 15 candidates of the 2016 English Olympiad.

Sarah has been invited to attend the National Schools Festival in Grahamstown in July, where the winner of the English Olympiad will be announced during a prestigious prize-giving ceremony.

Drawing more than 8 000 entries per year from learners in Grades 10, 11 and 12, this national English competition is a joint initiative of the South African Council for English Education and the Grahamstown Foundation. It aims to encourage learners to develop and express valuable opinions as part of the conversation needed to build a nation of critical thinkers.
